

NEW GOVERNANCE RULES - 2010

WILL YOUR BOARD BE READY?

In 2010, the FIFA World Cup will pale into insignificance when compared with the substantial new governance issues company directors will face.

The new Companies Act 71 of 2008 will set out in detail directors' duties and responsibilities. In addition, the King III Report on Governance in South Africa will come into force and will set out far-reaching new principles for corporate governance by your board.

Together, the Act and King III are set to promote more stringent standards of corporate governance and greater director accountability.

The Corporate Governance compliance and risk team at Cliffe Dekker Hofmeyr can help you and your board members ensure that proper structures and processes are established with appropriate checks and balances. This will enable your directors to fulfil their duties and responsibilities.

We offer extensive services with regard to informing the board of directors of the new rules and regulations, identifying relevant issues for a particular company and ensuring compliance.

Our services focus on:

- Directors' fiduciary and other duties in King III and the Companies Act 2008
- Proper governance of tax affairs
- Ensuring compliance with duties relating to environmental issues
- Information technology governance
- Anti-corruption requirements
- Media and telecommunication compliance
