The return of assets by an outsourced service provider: Does this constitute a transfer as a going concern

The legal implications of an entity outsourcing provisions through a tender and allowing the outsourced service provider to use its assets in rendering its services has been brought into focus in the case of King Cetshwayo District Municipality v Water and Sanitation Services South Africa (Pty) Ltd and Others (10 January 2025).

Transfer or no transfer? A consideration of the provisions of section 197 of the LRA and dismissals that flow from it

Section 197(2) of the Labour Relations Act 66 of 1995 (LRA), amongst other things, states that if a transfer of a business takes place, unless otherwise agreed in terms of section 197(6), the new employer is automatically substituted in the place of the old employer in respect of all employment contracts in existence immediately before the date of the transfer.

Discrimination v differentiation: A remuneration dispute

In 2003, the City of Johannesburg Metropolitan Municipality (Municipality) took a decision to make use of fixed-term contracts of employment for certain positions. In doing so, the Municipality invited permanent employees to convert their contracts of employment to fixed-term contracts, albeit on equal terms (converting employees). As an incentive, the converting employees were offered a salary increase of between 5% and 10%, as well as payment of an annual performance bonus.

Take note of your vows: A couple's transfer of employment and enforceability of restraint of trade agreements

In August 2020, CDH discussed the decision in Slo Jo Innovation (Pty) Ltd v Beedle and Another (J737/22) ZALCJHB 212 (Beedle), regarding the transfer of restraint of trade agreements in employment contracts. The court ruled that a restraint of trade agreement included in a contract of employment was transferable under section 197 of the Labour Relations Act 66 of 1995, as amended. The decision in Beedle was upheld by the Labour Appeal Court in Beedle v Slo-Jo Innovations HubHub (Pty) Ltd JOL 60553 (LAC).
